MARTIN KAPLAN, Ph.D.
DIRECTOR / THE NORMAN LEAR CENTER
Lear Center founding director Martin Kaplan has been the principal investigator of Hollywood, Health & Society since its inception in 2001. He is the Norman Lear professor of entertainment, media and society at the USC Annenberg School, where he was associate dean for 10 years. A summa cum laude graduate of Harvard in molecular biology, a Marshall Scholar in English at Cambridge University and a Stanford Ph.D. in modern thought and literature, he was Vice President Walter Mondale’s chief speechwriter and deputy presidential campaign manager. He has been a Disney Studios vice president of motion picture production; a film and television writer and producer; and a radio host, print columnist and blogger.

KATE LANGRALL FOLB, M.ED.
DIRECTOR / HOLLYWOOD, HEALTH & SOCIETY
Kate Folb is the director of Hollywood, Health & Society and a veteran for more than 20 years in the entertainment education field. After an early career in television and music production/management, Kate joined the Scott Newman Foundation as director of special projects, working with top TV shows and films on portrayals of alcohol and other substance abuse. Later, she spent nearly 10 years as director of The Media Project, a partnership of Advocates for Youth and the Kaiser Family Foundation, which addressed portrayals of adolescent reproductive health in the media, and worked with dozens of prime-time and daytime TV shows. From 2001-2012, she led Nightingale Entertainment, an independent consulting firm. She joined HH&S in 2012 as senior program manager, and became director in 2013. Kate speaks fluent Spanish, holds a bachelor’s degree from the University of Denver, and a master’s degree in education from UCLA.
